SUFFRAGE LEGAL BATTLE BEGINS

First Skirmish on Tennessee Ratification Expected Today

MAY DELAY VOTE OF WOMEN

Injunction Threatens Female Ballot in November Election

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(By Associated Press)—Both factions in the Tennessee suffrage fight prepared Monday for a legal battle over the legislature's ratification of the federal suffrage amendment.

Suffragists and their opponents were of the opinion the next step in the controversy probably would be the hearing on the temporary writ of injunction issued Saturday by Judge Langford restraining state officials from certifying ratification to Washington.

No date has been fixed for the hearing. It was believed by some of the principals, however, that the case might be heard late Monday or Tuesday.

The writ is returnable within five days on agreement of the parties to the action.

The Tennessee Constitutional League, which brought the suit on the grounds that the legislature under the state constitution had no right to ratify the suffrage amendment, has announced it will carry its fight, if necessary, to the United States supreme court.

Officials of the league predict the injunction will prevent women of the nation from voting for at least 18 months.

Suffragists expressed the belief that litigation would not be protracted and that ratification by Tennessee would be upheld by the courts in time for women to vote in November.

READY FOR SUFFRAGE ACT

WASHINGTON.—(By United Press)—Secretary of State Colby Monday is ready to proclaim final ratification of the federal woman suffrage amendment as soon as Governor Roemer formally certifies to him that Tennessee has acted favorably on the amendment.

Colby's proclamation is only a technical step in ratification of the amendment, but practically the sole efforts of suffragists now are centered on bringing about conditions so that he can issue it. Their opponents are trying to prevent this by court injunction.

Until Colby's proclamation is issued, the amendment is not a part of the constitution, even tho it is ratified by the necessary 36 states.

MASS MEETINGS CALLED BY ANTIS

BALTIMORE, Md.—(By Associated Press)—Members of the Tennessee house of representatives Monday issued a formal statement addressed to the people of Tennessee, setting forth their reason for leaving a quorum in the house by leaving the state. It bears the signatures of thirty-seven members of whom 27 are Democrats and 10 Republicans. The statement said:

"We are convinced that the methods which were adopted to secure the passage of the resolution were improper and not justified."

"We believe that the majority of the people of Tennessee do not favor the ratification of said amendment."

"We felt to have ratified said amendment would have been to surrender the sovereign rights of the state on the question of suffrage, which is one of the most important and sacred rights conferred and the only defense that the people of Tennessee had at this juncture rested in our hands, and the only way that we could serve was to take the course that we have taken. We fully understand that our action could only be justified by the tremendous issues involved."

WANT PEOPLE'S OPINION

"It seemed to us, and we feel convinced that we are right, that under conditions existing at Nashville, under pressure of a lobby and the demands improperly made by agencies which should not have been employed, the only proper course for us to take was to absent ourselves from the state for a period of time sufficient for the people of Tennessee to express themselves in such manner as might be adopted by them to the end that the governor of the state, who actively lent himself to the adoption of the amendment, and the members of the legislature who seem to favor its adoption, might be advised of the wishes of the people of Tennessee, and be superinduced by such expressions to abandon for the time being the prosecution of the endeavor to now ratify said amendment."

PROBE OF SHIP'S SINKING BEGINS

Officials Inquire Into Lake Disaster Costing 29 Lives

CLEVELAND.—(By United Press) Federal officials Monday started an investigation of the sinking of the lake freighter Superior City with the loss of 29 persons, following a collision with the Willis L. King, in Whitefish Bay, Friday night. Officials of the Pittsburgh Steamship Company, owners of the Superior City, dispatched a representative from Cleveland to aid in the probe.

Twenty-eight of the missing were members of the crew. The 29th victim was Mrs. James E. Eagles, Conneaut, Ohio, wife of an engineer on the boat. She was on a pleasure trip. A 20-months' old son, left in Conneaut, by the parents, survives.

Captain Edward L. Sawyer, captain of the Superior City, one of four of the crew saved, was in Cleveland Monday, but refused to discuss the sinking.

Officials said the feet are the biggest in the history of the corner's office.

The above advertisement was inserted by the coroner's office here Monday, in an effort to identify a body at the morgue. The shoes found on the body were size 16 1-2 and form the chief means of identification.

SEARCH CONTINUES

SAULT STE MARIE, Mich.—(By Associated Press)—Search for the bodies of 29 persons known to have lost their lives when the freighter Superior City was sunk in Lake Superior off Whitefish Point after colliding with the steamer Willis L. King, practically was abandoned today. All rescue parties have returned here after finding scarcely any wreckage. Scores of vessels have traversed the spot where the collision and explosion occurred, without sighting any trace of the lost vessel.

The dates to follow the first three were withheld until final arrangements are completed.

Cox will make the first speech of his western tour September 3, one year to a day after President Wilson on September 3, 1919, started his western tour, appealing for ratification of the peace treaty.

Democratic leaders characterized the projected tour as the most extensive ever made by a presidential candidate. Cox and his party will travel in three cars. Newspaper correspondents and motion picture operators will accompany the candidate.

Cox's private car has been equipped with an amplifying device, enabling his voice to be heard at distance of 250 feet from the rear platform.

—William Hennessy and James Mullaney, police sergeants, were shot and killed early Monday in a revolver duel.

Hinch Miller, municipal court bailiff, confessed shooting the two policemen, authorities said.

Miller, in the alleged confession, said he believed the officers intended killing him when he opened fire.

Police received a hot call from the scene of the shooting. Hennessy and Mullaney were found unconscious in a cafe. Others of the party had fled. The two officers died later.

INTERURBAN AND STEAM LINES OUT OF SPRINGFIELD DELAYED

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio.—(By United Press)—Traffic on interurban and steam lines entering this city, delayed by Saturday night's snowburst in the northern part of Clark Co., was approaching normal Monday.

More than 70 bridges and culverts were washed away, according to meager reports received here, causing damage amounting to thousands of dollars. Crops were also "badly damaged." Street car traffic in Springfield was suspended all day Sunday as the result of the power failure.

Ten families living near Buck Creek in the northern part of the city, were rescued from their homes by policemen in boats.

RETREAT CUT OFF BY POLE ARMY

35,000 Prisoners Captured By the Defenders of Warsaw

Polish Females Become Soldiers to Fight the Reds

WARSAW.—(By Associated Press)—The process of bottling up the Russian Soviet forces on the northern front between Prussia and the Vistula river, has been completed, according to an official statement issued just before last midnight. The Poles have closed the gateway of escape, taking prisoners and materials in such quantities that it is impossible to count them.

RETREAT CUT OFF

PARIS.—(By Associated Press)—The number of Russian Soviet prisoners captured in the Polish counter offensive will reach 35,000, according to Warsaw advices to the French foreign office Monday.

Most of the 35,000 prisoners already counted were captured in territory northwest of Warsaw, including the Danzig corridor, by the army under command of the French General Bilitzki, who formerly was chief of staff to General Lissauer, resident French governor of Morocco. This army now is most effective and is composed of German-trained men of Posen.

Another Polish army under command of the French General Henry is striking toward Bialystok from Warsaw, cutting off the Bolshevik retreat.

WOMAN JOIN COLORS

POSEN.—(By Associated Press)—Polish victories over the Russian Soviet armies before Warsaw caused intense excitement here Monday. Soldiers and volunteers parading the streets sang slinking songs denouncing Bolshevism. Streets were emblazoned with posters asking for volunteers and depicting the menace of Bolshevism in flaming blood red ink, while crowds cheered and sang as they waved good bye to troops departing for the northern front.

Reports from country towns indicated that volunteer detachments are being formed among civilians, women joining the colors with their husbands and brothers. So popular is the movement that even men are drilling in the streets.

It is the purpose of these forces to police the western frontier of Poland and to insure that the national boundaries of Poland will be maintained.

RUSSIANS EVACUATE

LONDON.—(By Associated Press)—Retirement of Russian Soviet forces from the city of Brest-Litovsk was officially admitted in a statement issued in Moscow and received here Monday by wireless. The statement reports fierce fighting in progress to the eastward of Wlodawa and Cholm, east of Lublin. In the Orloko section of the Crimian fighting front the Russian Soviet forces are overcoming the fierce resistance of the enemy, the statement says. The communiqués reads:

"Our troops in the Lomza region were engaged August 22 with the enemy who was developing his advances north of Ostrow (50 miles northeast of Warsaw). East of Wlodawa and Cholm fierce fighting is proceeding.

"In the Halicz region 65 miles southeast of Lubomia, Galicia, we have debouched along the whole sector of the Zlota Lipa river and are fighting for possession of the fords across it.

"On the Crimean sector, in the Orloko region, we are advancing and overcoming the enemy's fierce resistance."

TOWN TAKEN Y POLES

WARSAW.—(By Associated Press)—The Poles have taken the town of Czaduski, about 12 miles north of Ciechanow, and have cut off the retreat of Bolsheviks forces northwest and north of this city to the way of Miawa and Piszawie.

The eighteenth Polish division, which has been attacking Ciechanow has been met by desperate resistance on the part of enemy detachments covering the retreat of the fourth Soviet army, which last week advanced along the Prussian defenses along the Vistula river.

Police received a hot call from the scene of the shooting. Hennessy and Mullaney were found unconscious in a cafe. Others of the party had fled. The two officers died later.

Home Brew Aroma Calls Police Off Ape Chase

PITTSBURGH.—The customers lined up at the improvised bar a speak easy and called for drinks. Suddenly a shape stood among them. It was hairy and ferocious. Its thick lips writhed away from yellow fangs, as its gnarled fingers with claw-like nails grasped the slender stem of a champagne goblet filled with home brew. The customers fled.

Thus, the ape alarm spread. Posses were formed. The police eagerly read Poe's "Murders in the Rue Morgue" for pointers on how to proceed. Horror was abroad in the night. But, hist! A wise Sherlock, after hearing many stories about the ape man was impressed by the faint aroma of home brew. He noticed in the atmosphere whenever one of the terrorized was telling his story to the giant baboon. So he called off the ape hunt.

Electric Train Runs Into Crowded Motor Bus at Camden, N. J.

WARNING IS NOT HEeded

Safety Gates At Crossing Not Working; Report

CAMDEN, N. J.—(By Associated Press)—Ten persons are dead and five others badly injured in the result of a grade crossing accident in this city Sunday night. Two of the victims died early Monday, in hospital.

A motor bus containing 15 passengers bound for Fairview, the winter village, was struck by a fast Pennsylvania electric train from Millville.

The driver of the bus had been stopped by the crossing watchman. When a train passed, the driver started to cross the tracks unaware that the electric train was approaching.

The watchman says he shouted to the driver but the noise drowned the sound of his voice. The driver of a taxicab which was also halted at the crossing, corroborates the watchman.

The crossing has been the scene of three fatal accidents in the past six weeks. Safety gates recently installed were put

PONZI'S VICTIMS RANGE FROM JUDGE TO OFFICE BOY

MANY INVESTORS RECOVERED

Others Think Federal Receivers Will Make Good

PATRONS' LIST SURPRISE

Seems Paid In Run From $25 to $52,833

BOSTON, Mass. — (By Associated Press) — A list of investors in the Ponzi postal coupon scheme — persons who trusted in the ability of the overnight financier to make riches for them in a month or two — looked like a cross section of the community when it was printed Monday. All walks of life were there — men and women of the professions, of business and of labor. It is estimated that thirty thousand individuals placed their money in the scheme which now is in receivership and of these about half drew it with or without the 50 per cent interest which Ponzi paid before the crash.

The others are relying on federal receivers to recover what is left. The list runs the gamut from Judge to office boy. Former liquor dealers turned to Ponzi in the hope of recouping their broken fortunes, a wealthy spinster was there, a building contractor, business men of high standing, a sporting promoter, soldiers, real estate dealers, manufacturers, police and the ordinary laborer in large numbers. In the Italian quarter especially, his investors were legion.

The appearance of the list brought denials from many of those whose names appeared.

Some of those named, however, said they had regained their investments with profits of hundreds or thousands of dollars.

The investments noted ranged from $25.00 to $32,833, the latter being attributed to a man associated with Ponzi as an agent.

CLOUDBURST DOES DAMAGE TO O. E.

Tracks Washed Out on Springfield Division

Traffic between Lima and Columbus over the Ohio Electric railway was only maintained Sunday and Monday by transferring passengers over a distance of a quarter of a mile at a point two miles north of the Springfield city limits, where the track was washed out as a result of a cloudburst Saturday night, according to Superintendent of Transportation C. C. Fast. Fast declared the track would be repaired and trains running thru not later than Tuesday morning.

Two more small sections of track were washed out within a few miles of the point where the most damage was done, but according to Fast these had been repaired Monday morning. The cloudburst, which caused the damage occurred between 6 and 7 p.m. Saturday.

O. E. limited train for Columbus, leaving Lima at 4:45 was caught between two of the points where the track was washed out, as it went south, and could not be moved until the track was repaired Monday morning, Fast declared. Passengers were transferred to other cars after the storm subsided sufficiently.

Fast stated Monday the tracks of the Ohio Electric were not damaged by the heavy rains of Saturday on any other divisions of the road.

SUITS FILED AGAINST DELPHOS RUBBER CO.

Three mechanics and material men's liens have been filed in the Van Wert co. courts against the Glamorgan Tire and Rubber Co., Delphos. The total of the claims amount to considerably more than $7,000. All of the people filing claims assert they had contracts for labor and material which they supplied with Dr. Morgan Howells, president of the company.

Delphos stockholders in the company desire to separate and form another concern to be known as the Rubber Company. A meeting will be held August 31 to decide the question.

HAYS VISITS HUGHES
NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Chairman Will Hays of the Republican national committee, lunched Monday with Charles E. Hughes, former Republican presidential nominee at the latter's invitation. The purpose of the meeting, according to Hays, was to arrange with Hughes for the latter's participation in the campaign.

BLANCHE GROVER IS AT HOME

Pretty Lima Actress Denies Poisoning Story From New York

Miss Blanche Grover, pretty Lima actress, arrived in Lima Sunday from New York.

Miss Grover has recovered fully from an attack of acute indigestion.

The attack gripped her mysteriously shortly after her arrival in the big city where she has gone to negotiate contracts for her appearance in the movies and on a vaudeville circuit.

The report was circulated that it was believed she had been poisoned when she was found unconscious in a room in a hotel in New York. A man had called shortly before she was found, and officials feared that there was something irregular connected with the affair.

But Miss Grover, when she arrived in Lima, denied absolutely that there was anything to the poisoning theory.

"It was acute indigestion," she declared, "and that was all." The man who called me a business associate," she said, "his name being J. H. Van Vechten, suggested with artist life in the big city."

SIGMA THEATRE FURNISHINGS

Fine Display of Carpets, Curtains, Etc. at Leader Store

Ten thousand dollars worth of draperies and carpets for the new Sigma theatre to be opened on Labor Day, will be on display in the show windows of the Leader store after Meadow afternoon. The draperies, made by the drapery department of the store, which also has contracts for furnishing the new Grand Theatre, at Tiffin, and for the Lyric, in Lima, are said to be among the finest in any theatre in northwestern Ohio. The stage curtain for the Sigma is a silk valance valance 21 feet wide. This valance is trimmed with motifs of all-gold braid, a six inch gold bullion fringe and massive gold bullion tassels. The two drop curtains are 18 feet long and 15 feet wide and are lined to correspond with the main valance.

Thirteen curtains to match the stage draperies have been provided for the windows.

THE ROOM WITH THE TASELS

BY CAROLYN WELLS

Her story was received with grave consideration. It was impossible to believe the honest, earnest child capable of falsehood or deceit. Her description was too realistic, her straightforward narrative too unshakable, her manner too impressively true, to be doubted in the least degree or detail.

Gifford Bruce laughed and complimented her on her pluck. Mr. Tracy reproved her for breaking his word to her cousin, but as he was in no way responsible for Vernie's behaviour, he said very little.

Landon scolded her roundly, while Vernie said nothing at all.

The whole affair cast rather a gloom over them all, for it seemed as if the spectre had at last really manifested itself in earnest. An undoubtedly appearance to an innocent child was far more convincing than to a grown person of avowed psychic tendencies. Eve Cranforth might have imagined much of the story she told; her "expectant" attention might have exaggerated the facts; but Vernie's mind was like a page of white paper, on which the scene she passed thru had left a clear imprint.

That night Vernie herself got out the Ouija board and asked Eve to help her try it.

"No," was the reply. "I'm too broken up. And, too, the people don't believe me. Get your uncle or Mr. Tracy or some truthful and honourable person to help you."

It embittered Eve that her earnestness and her implicit belief in the supernatural made it more difficult for the others to look upon her as entirely disingenuous. She resented this, and was a little morose in consequence. Norma Cameron, herself an avowed "sensitive," had had no spiritistic visitation in the haunted room, and Eve thought Norma had doubted her word.

At last after trying all the others that she wanted, Vernie persuaded good-natured Mr. Tracy to move Ouija with her, and the two sat down with the Ouija board between them.

Few and flippant messages were forthcoming, until just as Vernie had laughingly declared she would throw the old thing out the window, a startling sentence formed itself from the erratic darlings of the heart-shaped toy, and Vernie turned pale.

"Stop it!" ordered Tracy. "I refuse to touch it again!"

He removed his hand and sat back, but Vernie, glaring at the letters, held it a moment longer.

"To-morrow! it says to-morrow!" she cried. "Oh, Eve, I told you so!"

"What, Vernie? What is it?" and Eve Cranforth came over to the excited child.

"Ouija, Eve! Ouija said that to-morrow at four, two of us are to die! Oh, Eve, you know that every death in this house has occurred at four o'clock in the morning!" Mr. Robbins said so. And now two of us are to die to-morrow!"

"Insens!" cried Mr. Tracy, "die to that rubbish! The Ouija off its track. Maybe Vernie pushed it,—maybe I did."

"Now, Mr. Tracy, I didn't push it, and you needn't try to make anybody think you did! You never pushed it to say a thing like that! Why, it spelled it out as plain as day! Uncle Gifford, do you hear? Two of us to die to-morrow!" Vernie's voice rose to a hysterical shriek.

"Hush, Vernie! Hush child. I'll take you away from here to-morrow. We ought never to have brought you," and Gifford Bruce glowered at the others as he clasped the sobbing child in his arms, and took her from the room.

"You're right," agreed Mr. Tracy, and Vernie was right. He said a fright or shock would upset that child's nerves completely. But she must have pushed the board herself. It flew around like lightning, and spelled out the message just as she said. I tried to steer it off, but she urged against me. I felt her doing so. I don't mean she made up the message to create a sensation, but I think the ghost last night affected her as a warning, and her mind is so full of it, that she unconsciously or subconsciously worked up that message. At any rate, I've had about enough of this, if she's to be here. It isn't right to frighten a child so, and Vernie is little more than a child."

"That's so," said Norma, thoughtfully. "I've had enough, too. If the rest of you want to stay on, I'll go down to New York to-morrow, and take Vernie to stay with me for a while. We'll go to the seashore, and I'll see to it that she has no psychic or supernatural experiences."

"Why, Norma," and Eve looked surprised, "I thought you were so interested in these things."

"So I am, but not to the extent of so affecting the nervous system of a sweet, innocent child, that it may result in permanent injury."

"She's all right," said Gifford Bruce, returning alone. "It's hysteria. I think I'll take her back to town to-morrow or the next day. There's something uncanny up here, that's certain. I didn't take any stock in the experiences of you people, but I can't disbelieve Vernie's story."

The party broke up and all went to their rooms. There was no volunteer to sleep in the haunted room that night, and every one felt a shivering dread of what might happen at four o'clock the next mornin.

Not one admitted it, but every one secretly shuddered at thought of Ouija's message.

And when, as the half clock rung out its four strokes the next morning, and nothing untoward happened, every one drew a long breath and soon went to sleep again, relieved, as of a heavy burden.

Gaily they gathered at breakfast, daylight and good cheer reviving their spirits.

"But Ouija is henceforth taboo," said Mr. Tracy, shaking his finger at the now laughing Vernie.

"For little girls, anyway," supplemented Eve.

"Little girls are taboo, also," declared Gifford Bruce. "I can't get off to-day, for I want to see Rudolph on his return, but tomorrow, I pack up my Vernie child and take her back to our own little old Chicago on the lake. These expenses are too black for us!"

"Now, Uncle, I don't want to go," and Vernie pouted prettily. "And I added with a roguish glance at her uncle, whom she usually twisted round her rosy little finger.

But he gave her a grave smile in return, and the subject was dropped for the moment.

Soon after noon, Brayne came up from the city, and listened, frowning, to the tales that were told him.

"You promised me, Vernie," he said, reproachfully.

"I know it. Cousin Rudolph, but you see, I've never kept a promise in my whole life,—and I didn't want to break my record!"

"Naughty Flapper! I won't give you the present I brought for you."

"Oh, yes you will," and so wheedlesome was the lovely face, and so persuasive the soft voice, that Vernie nie, after a short argument, seized upon a small jeweller's packet and unwrapped a pretty little ring.

"Angel Cousin," she observed, "you're just about the nicest cousin I possess—beside being the only one!"

"Doubtful compliment!" laughed Brayne. "Any way, you're the prettiest and naughtiest cousin I own! As a punishment for your disobedience I challenge you to a round with old Outja to-night! I'll bet I can make it say something more cheerful than you wern't out on it last evening."

"All right, we'll try it," and Vernie danced gaily away to tease her uncle not to take her home.

A little later, Milly, as housekeeper, discovered some serious shortage in the commissariat department, and Brayne offered to drive her over to Mrs. Dryden, marketing.

They started off, Milly calling back to Eve to preside at the tea-table, if she didn't return in time.

"All right," agreed Eve, though Vernie vociferously announced her intention of playing hostess in Milly's absence.

The shoppers had not returned when old Thorpe brought in the tray.

"You can pour, Eve, and I'll pass the cakes," said Vernie, who was in high spirit, for she had partially persuaded her uncle to remain longer at Black Aspens. He was just phrasing certain strong stipulations on which his permission was to be based, when the tea things arrived.

"Thank you," said Vernie, her lashes swept upward as she gave it.

"Referring to that matter," she said, "I have a competition planned."

They were as usual in the tray.

Even though they sometimes suggested the plan of having tea out of doors, there was no cheerful terrace, or pleasant porch. The hall, though sombre and vast, had become more or less homelike by virtue of usage, so there they took their tea.

Mr. Tracy, always graceful in social matters, helped pass the cups and plates, for no one liked to have the old Thorpes about unnecessarily.

"No tea for me, please," declared Norma; "I think it upsets my nerves."

"And that is not the thing to do in this house," laughed Landon.

"This is mighty good tea, though,—I didn't know anybody could brew it as well as Milly. Congratulations, Eve!"

"Thank you," said Vernie, her lashes swept upward as she gave it.

"Referring to that matter," she said, "I have a competition planned."

"Oh," cried Eve, "when does it happen?"

"I don't know," said Vernie, her voice

Gifford Bruce began. "I... Even as he spoke, the clock chimed four, and all always, they paused to count the long, slow strokes.

Then Vernie began again, "I think, myself..."

A strange change passed over him. His jaw fell, his eyes stared, and then his tongue fell from his mouth, and he slumped down in an awful, a tottering head.

Landon sprang to his assistance, Norma ran to him, while Tracy, with a quick glance at Vernie, flew to the child's side.

"What is it?" he cried to her, "what's the matter, Vernie?" He shifted an arm around her, just as, with wild look and a ringing shriek, the girl's head fell back and her eyes closed.

"Oh," cried Eve, "when does it happen?"

"Always bears," she said.

let us lay her on this sofa."

Between them they carried the girl, for she was past muscular effort, and as they placed her gently on the sofa, her eyes fluttered, she gave a gasping sigh, and fell back, inert.

"Oh," cried Eve, "she isn't—she isn't—oh, it's just four o'clock!" Landon ran to Vernie's side and beat at her heart.

"She is dead," he said, solemnly, his face white, his voice shaking. "Gifford Bruce is dead, too. It is four o'clock!"

NOW GET BUSY!

OBTAINING more efficiency in the handling of railroad properties was the big thing in the public mind when the carrier utilities and the government were facing the problem of increased wage for the employees. Now that the wages have been adjusted and freight rates have been increased to take care of the railroad companies' increased expenses, the country will look expectantly to the railroads to make good.

There need be no fear of the public attitude toward the higher rates if the right disposition is shown toward meeting the demand for better service. The public was prepared for the advances allowed the carriers by the interstate commerce commission, with the understanding, quite naturally, that the increase in wages granted to railroad employees would be passed on to it thru increased freight and passenger rates.

The point has been reached where, if the country can get improved service it will not hesitate to pay any rates that can be shown to be reasonable. During the period of government operation of the railroads it appeared to be impressed that the railroads were not making the amount of money the public believed they were, or that they had been led to suppose. It is true, they had been restricted, but the fact remains nevertheless, that there were glaring examples of what might be called looting, on the part of railroad management, particularly when it became apparent that the government would soon take over the railroads for the duration of the war.

In the face of this fact and the added fact that while the roads were under government control looting was practiced more extensively, in anticipation of a big return from the government, when the systems were returned to the owners, it cannot be denied that to prevent a collapse of the transportation system the carriers must not be kept hobbled too much in their charges, while everything they have to pay for is mounting in cost.

This does not mean that the public will submit forever to rate boosting, but that until things are stabilized the railroads must be allowed whatever rates are necessary to keep the service going. They need more rolling stock and other equipment and in the last analysis "Jones will pay the freight."

REGULAR FELLOWS.

DURING last week the break in the telegraph news brought over the wires stories of mercantile deflation which sent our reporters to a dozen or more business men seeking interviews and interpretations. Every reporter came back pleased with his reception and ready to take oath that Lima retailers were "regular fellows."

No city can go very far wrong when the retailer is on the square and that is just what can be said about the leading and better known retailers of this city.

Not one of the better known houses hesitates to admit that indications point to lower prices to come; not one of them is asleep, but is keyed to conditions. Many of them are so up on the bit that their express charges would have staggered them a few years ago. Why? Because they are buying short and rushing the goods to Lima, ready to take advantage of any drop in behalf of their customers.

Yet any merchant will tell you that it is not possible to expect more than fluctuations during the ensuing nine months. Suits, dresses, underwear, furniture, shoes, a thousand and one manufactured articles, are already made up and in the main, are already shipped. These goods will not be less in price for they were manufactured last winter at or even as far back as last fall. But for next spring's wearables, there is strong hope on the part of our merchants that they will be able to supply the Lima trade at lower prices.

One thing every consumer can safely rely upon—if he patronizes the better known stores, he will receive an honest run for his money, because these men are "regular fellows" who conduct business on a fair return.

nativity, it is only natural that they seek to journey across the sea to the new world, where to be an American is better than to be a king on a throne under the old world conditions.

America extends a welcome to those who come with hearts ready to become attuned to American ideals, to assist in working out the great program of human progress. The drift toward America should be strong. The United States never needed willing hands more than at the present time. More must be done to get these people in the right channels of thinking and working after they reach our shores. America beckons to those desirables who come with a song of praise and thanksgiving in their hearts, leaving behind them the traditions of the old world, ready and willing to embrace the new.

There is no room in America for the disturber, the agitator, the red, the anarchist; those who toil not, neither do they spin, but subsist off the increment of the gullible, whose minds they pervert and whose feet they direct into the paths of destruction of government and organized and constituted authority. Russia today is the pitiful victim of such a condition. Vigilance must be maintained that nothing of that character is permitted to drag its slimy form across America.

HEALTH HINTS FOR TODAY

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

TRAINING THE HEART MUSCLE—13.

Medicine, intelligently prescribed to meet the immediate requirements of the patient who has heart trouble, is a godsend. No one can surmise what that medicine should be, if any medicine is needed, except the physician who has examined the patient personally at the moment.

Medicine which may be a valuable aid in recovery and cure today and tomorrow, may do harm if administered days after tomorrow, on account of the changed conditions.

There is no condition in which training with medicine proves more futile or more harmful, than in heart trouble. There is certainly no medicine which may be wisely employed for an indefinite period or for any alleged weakness of the heart, notwithstanding popular notions to the contrary. The improper use of such drugs as digitalis, strichnine, or nitroglycerin, a practice lightly adopted by some people, is responsible for serious and sometimes fatal consequences.

Another popular delusion regarding heart disease is that the subject with a diseased heart must never take any exercise or exert himself in any way if he can possibly avoid it. The truth is that gradually increasing doses of exercise will accomplish more in the way of restoration of normal function in case of valvular disease or heart muscle degeneration than any other exercise.

JUST A GIRL

BY JANE PHELPS

BAD LUCK.

I knew the two simple souls in that little Mohawk Valley town would not read too closely between the lines—Mother with her ignorance of anything but life as we had had it when Dad was alive, and Aunt Susan knowing nothing of city life. So I sent off my letter, sure that it would prove satisfying.

I went to the corner to mail it about 7 o'clock. Then, again hungry, I went to the eatery for dinner. This time a cross-looking black-haired girl checked my tray, felt suddenly depressed because of the incident. You know I couldn't hope always to see my white-haired friend with the electric smile.

When I returned to my room, sat down and counted my money, was absolutely frightened. Only two days and so noon gone already my meals, room rent, the bit I had dropped into the collection basket at church, the papers I had bought, had made a big hole in my little street. I was not kept long waiting. A door marked "Private" opened, and the shock-headed, freckled faced boy to whom I had stated my errand, motioned me to enter.

At first I was a bit bewildered by the magnificence of the room, which was recently flashy, as was the big, double-chimney occupant who sat beside the mahogany table. "Well, young lady, what can I do for you?" he asked as I stood just inside the door. When he spoke his chin shook like jelly, giving him a most peculiar look. His eyes, too, seemed to close because of the fat pouches underneath and the heavy overhanging eyebrows.

"I came in answer to your advertisement. I hope I am not too late."

Tonight—Disengagement.

SOURCE—A given name.

He is one which, strangely enough in view of its Irish form, so complicated to our English-acquainted eyes, has developed very few variations in its transition into English spelling.

This is true because, despite the complicated looks of the Gaelic spelling, the pronunciation is not very susceptible to any other phonetic condition in English than Casey, or when care is taken to preserve the faint "h" sound in the middle of the name, Cahessey.

The Irish spelling is nothing less than "O'Catheasigh," sometimes also spelled "O'Caheasay." To our English-trained eyes the latter form illustrates best its pronunciation, when it is remembered that the sound of the final "dh" easily became eliminated, and makes clear the reason for the spelling sometimes, but not often met with, of Cahessey. The "h" in such a name is very easy to ignore except for a tongue trained in the Irish language.

The given name from which this family or clan name was developed is "Cathasach," and its meaning is "brave." It was a name quite common in the old Irish nomenclature, but, of course, only in comparative few instances gave rise to a family name.

The O'Casey's in Ireland are most thickly settled in Munster, Limerick and Clare (the territory which was the ancient Thomond,) and also in Cork.

The Latest Reports from the Big Circuits Make It Look Like the World's Series This Year Will Be the Same as Last.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD CHANGE

REPITITION OF LAST YEAR'S RACE LOOMS AS POSSIBILITY

BY JOE BERNSTEIN

AND now we have what we had last year. The Reds are in first place in the National league and the Chicago White Sox have just reached the peak of their circuit—and all is different in the big leagues.

Is it a repetition of last year's series?

Maybe, if the Reds continue to hold first, altho their present hold is a slim one, and if the Chicago White Sox stay where they are, for the rest of the season.

It's a fickle old baseball. The Indians have dropped back a couple notches to permit the Chicago team to advance, and Cincinnati, after getting what looked like a pretty nice lead on the ousted Robins, slipped back a little again Sunday when they allowed the Brooklyn outfit to hand 'em a defeat.

Still, even the Chicago has copped off the first honors and even the Brooklyn is right on the heels of the champions, the dream of an All Ohio series can still go peacefully on.

Cleveland is by no means out of the race, and Cincinnati is plugging away trying to hold on to the sweetest thing in the circuit.

Ohio fans wouldn't be terribly disappointed, however, if the Reds and the White Sox were to be the chosen too to battle for the world's honors again this year.

Tris Speaker, the heavy hitting manager of the Indians, will be back with his outfit Monday after an absence of a couple of days to attend Ray Chapman's funeral. It is expected that his return will help to instill the old pep into the Tribe.

The double defeat of the Cleveland team at the hands of Boston on Saturday is attributed largely to the absence of Speaker from the line-up and the funeral of Ray Chapman on the day previous.

SICKING A COMING STAR.

There's a lad on the Cincinnati Red outfit who's beginning to hit the ball for all that it's worth and then some more.

That lad was literally kicked off the Giant outfit not so long ago, and is now beginning to make Jawn McGraw feel pretty sore about having allowed him to depart.

He is none other than Eddie Sicking who is playing second base for the champions. Sicking, after getting a poor start this season, has what looks like a pretty low batting average, but the way he is hammering the ball now looks like he's going to finish the season in pretty fair condition.

Sicking is an asset to the championship outfit and Moran knows it. He may be able to develop into a vital part of the Red wrecking crew.

Groh, Roush, and Daubert, have been hammering the ball right along, and at a pretty fair pace. With the aid of Sicking, who is, incidentally, a home town boy, having played sandlot ball in Cincinnati, there may be a lot of hits in the third column of the Repland box scores from now on.

The big league pennant races this season are the prettiest that have been staged in many moons. While the American league scramble has been a close one, the Indians have hogged the lead most of the time. First place has been changing hands so often in the National that the printers

The big league pennant races this season are the prettiest that have been staged in many moons.

While the American league scramble has been a close one, the Indians have hogged the lead most of the time. First place has been changing hands so often in the National that the printers are dizzy. Brooklyn, New York, and the Cinci Reds are fighting it out for the flag right now and the result seems to hang on how the pitching staffs of the three teams go in the next few weeks. The teams rank about even in batting strength. The Dodger hurling staff, composed of Grimes, Cadore, Marquard, Mamaux and company, is by far the most formidable now. But the Giants' mound outfit has been strengthened recently by the return of Benton to form. The Reds' staff has been weakened all season by the failure of Sallee and Eiler to win under the new rules.

JOHNNY EVERES, REAL MIRACLE MAN OF BASEBALL

"MIRACLE MEN" in baseball have reached their peak with the public, it would seem, since the marvelous recuperation of the Giants has put them in a position from where they can almost see the 1920 pennant waving from their flagpole.

In 1914 when the Braves made a supreme effort and finished on top after a march from the bottom of the ladder, the delighted baseball world arose and hailed George Stallings as the miracle man of baseball. Last Fall, when the Reds won a pennant and then trounced the White Sox in the World's series, Pat Moran was crowned laurel. Now the Giants have done it, so it may be predicted that the metropolitan and other kind of press will go into hysteria over John

J. McGraw if the Giants capture the flag.

It hasn't apparently occurred to baseball followers that John J. Evers was captain of the 1914 Braves and that when he left the game the Braves deteriorated into an ordinary ball club. It also apparently has been overlooked that John visited Pat Moran in the closing throes of last year's campaign, helped him in the final gasps and scouted for the White Sox preliminary to the world's series games. He was Moran's able lieutenant during the series and his advice was seriously followed. Then, after scrutinizing these facts, it is only necessary to announce that the spirit of the Giants dates practically from the day when Evers began to lend his fire-breathing apparatus to the work of the Giants.

This is not intended as an essay of the merits of Mr. Evers. Far from it. The average fan thinks of second base and John Evers at the same time, so he knows who the famous Trojan is quite as well as anyone else. The object of this outburst is to freshen the memory at bit. The fans will draw their own conclusions regarding who is really entitled to the lily wreath that indicates miracle man.

The ultimate result of what has happened to the Giants seems to be that John Evers, a John McGraw player, if ever one carried out the fighting principles of that well-known Irishman, will succeed McGraw as the National League's most colorful manager. Things haven't been breaking overly well for the little Napoleon in the last few years of his affiliation with baseball. Hence the parting of the ways between McGraw and others who control the Giants may not be so far in the future as might seem. McGraw admittedly has hung onto the job at times when he really was growing frail under long years in harness. He wanted to make sure that he would find someone who could handle the biggest attraction of the entire card.

The event is the 2:20 for three year old trotters. A number of grand circuit horses will start in the race. The entries have been closed. About twenty horses are scheduled to make the start.

Betty Kone of R. S. Kingsbury's horses, Xenia, O., and Signal Peter of the Springfield Signal Hill stables will probably rule favorites.

The two horses have met on the grand circuit and it is expected that the two alone on Tuesday will furnish the biggest attraction of the entire card.

The two class events, a 2:20 race and a 2:12 trot, both for a purse of $100 complete the card.

FAIR'S SPEED PROGRAM GOOD

Speed will be the keynote of the Allen-co Fair that will open Tuesday at the Lima Fair Grounds.

A program of two races and one stage race will inaugurate the horse racing events of the week with the Marshall house stake of $1,000 attracting the most attention on the card.

INDUSTRIALS IN OLYMPIC

AKRON, O.—The American Industrial Athletic Association is well represented among the teams which are competing for honors at the Olympic meet in Antwerp. Three members of the American team and one member of the Canadian team have taken part and won prizes in A. I. A. A. national track meets.

The A. I. A. A. men on the American team are Joe Ray, world's champion middle distance runner; Dan Ahern, national hop, and jump champion, and Frank Loomis, holder of the world's record in the 400-meter hurdles. The representative on the Canadian team is Campbell Freeman, walking champion.

Ray competed in A. I. A. A. meets while a member of the track teams of the Gary, Ind., Tin Mill, and the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. Ahern is employed by Morris & Co., Chicago. Freeman also represented the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co.

It is significant that this quartet of track stars are workingmen and won their position in the track firmament thru diligent training after working hours. Ray and Freeman are mechanics by profession. Ahern is of a factory police force, and Loomis is an accountant.

Industrial workers are watching their representatives with the keen interest that college men are following the fortunes of their heroes at Antwerp.

NIMRODS OPEN NATIONAL SHOOT

CLEVELAND, O.—With approximately 1,000 expert marksmen from every part of the United States and Canada participating, the twenty-first Grand American Handicap trap shooting tournament opened a six day session at Edgewater Park here Monday. It is predicted the meeting will be the greatest in the history of the sport.

The entrants comprise the cream of the trap shooting talent of the world. Members of the Olympic trap shooting team which made a clean sweep at Antwerp recently have entered. Practically every marksman is a sectional champion and many are states and world champions.

MICHIGAN HAS STIFF SKED

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Michigan will open its football season on Perry Field Oct. 2nd, with Case Scientific School of Cleveland. The game with Case as a gridiron inaugural has become something of a tradition at Michigan, although Agricultural College also is booked again this year. Tulane University is scheduled to come to Ann Arbor on October 31st.

There remains just one week before the first annual Industrial field and track meet of the Lima Industrial Athlete association, will be presented to the Lima public.

A meeting of the factory representatives from plants that will take part in the big meet is to be held at the Y. M. C. A. tonight. A lot of interest has been manifested in the meet.

Tonight, final plans will be laid for the big meet. Tonight, every representative of every factory in the city is asked to be present in making those final plans.

The track and field meet promises to be the biggest sporting event of the year, and Lima factories are bucking it.

The second heat went to Kealahala, with McGillivray third.

"Mays while howled down with grief," the announcement said, "is not a broken reed. He will go along and follow his regular means of livelihood as a strong man should, and we expect him to win games as usual. If he receives protection he will receive it from us to the extreme limit, no matter where it may lead."

"Since joining the Yankees Carl Mays has been a loyal and pain-taking player whose life has been clean and whose conduct has been above reproach. He has our entire confidence and will have our unstinted support."

"The district attorney's office has declared Ray Chapman's death to have been the result of an accident. No hostile word should be uttered against the man who was the cause of it. He feels the outcome more deeply than most of us do."

The schedule is confined to Western Conference game, of which four are listed, and is as follows:

October 9.—Case at Ann Arbor.

October 16.—Michigan at Toledo.

October 23.—Illinois at Ann Arbor.

October 30.—Tulane at Ann Arbor.

November 6.—Ohio State at Columbus.

November 13.—Chicago at Ann Arbor.

November 20.—Minnesota at Minneapolis.

LOVE AND MARRIED LIFE

BY IDA McGLOONE GIBSON

THE AFTERMATH

"But I didn't do it, I didn't do it!" a shrieking voice exclaimed.

"Of course, you didn't do it, dear, of course, you didn't do it. It was a motor accident," said Alice with her arms around me.

"Was that I speaking?" I asked Alice in surprise.

"Doctor, you must do something for her. The shock has been too much."

Quietly I disengaged myself from Alice's arms.

"Where have they taken John?" I asked.

"Both your husband and Miss Moreland have been taken to Starr's Undertaking Establishment," said the doctor.

I laughed.

"Oh, don't let her do that! Don't let her do that!" exclaimed Alice.

Rosie answered, the doctor inserted a hypodermic needle in my arm. I felt the sharp prick of pain and said, "I do not need that, doctor."

"Then you will lie down on this sofa, Mrs. Gordon, and see if you can rest."

I did as he told me, but with the thought surging thru my brain that even in death fate had conspired to keep my husband and Elizabeth Moreland together.

As I grew calmer, my thoughts went back to the afternoon, just a few hours before. Then John had said, "When we move into the new home, 'Girl,' we shall have the happiness of which we have dreamed." Oh, I am so glad he said it to me! I am so glad he meant it, for I know he meant it! And I am so

PATTERN FOR TODAY

A NEW AND STYLISH GOWN Pattern 3317 was employed for this design. It is cut in 7 Sizes: 34, 26, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 38 inch size will require 5 1/4 yards of 42 inch material.

Serge and fancy silks or satin braided with soutache or with floss would be attractive for this model. It is also good for velveteen, taffeta, velours, duchess, jersey cloth, faille or broad cloth. The width of the skirt at the foot is about 1 3/4 yard. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

DIARY OF AN ENGAGED GIRL

BY PHYLLIS PHILLIPS

LINDSEY SAVES TWO HEARTS FROM SUFFERING

Spent the morning in close confab with Mr. Reade, and then he asked me to lunch with him, as a sort of farewell affair, which I did. He is nicer than words can ever tell, and so man of the worldish, which is what I like above all else in a man. We had a jolly feed, and he talked to me about my work, and my future until I felt quite like some of the other great journalists have felt like when first they made good. He instructed me as to the best way to get my ideas over here to him from Europe, and we finally arranged definitely for next year. I am now a chartered cartoonist for "The Evening Leader" for the next twelve months at least, and if he had had his way it would have been for longer. This I thought unwise, however, for girl like myself can never tell where she will be, exactly, from one year to another. Besides I hate being bound down indefinitely to anyone, or anything! I do feel happy at the way things are shaping themselves for me—it's wonderful.

From my office (sound so important) I called up Brix, and commanded him for the whole afternoon. Instructed him to meet me at Dorry's studio, and to arrive early and stay late.

It was then my sweet-sad duty to take leave of my pals on the "Leader," which I did. They were all so cordial, and seemed genuinely sorry to have me leave, even for so short a time. It made me feel most important.

Got over to Dorry's at about three, and found her busy—doing nothing. She looked rather pale and was not at all her old self, which made me suspicious at once. One gets to know the earmarks of love after a while!

That wretched girl is the only one of all of us who has determined not to be had—not at any price. She is bound to stand alone and not be led to the altar, what the both of them are in love. Now I do feel sorry for her, for she is going to be a second Aunt Cecilia. Well Dorry is that kind of a girl, and I don't suppose anything will ever change her, if love can't. She is so self-sufficient she fair-his name and profession (engineering); also that he is about to leave for foreign shores, broken-hearted. I then faked a terrific headache and asked Dorry for some powders, which she did not have, but offered to run out and fetch. I begged her to do so, and as soon as she was fairly gone I danced over to the receiver, took it down, and in a clear voice asked for Columbus 6620. When I heard a masculine voice on the other end I asked sweetly if that were Mr. Arthur Staunton, and followed by a quick sketch of Dorry, her red eyes, and her deep dejection. I ended up with an earnest plea for Mr. Staunton to rush over here and knock the obstinate girl on the head, if necessary, for she was prepared to suffer rather than confess her love, and allow herself to be married! There was tremendous relief in Mr. Staunton's voice at my news, and at the end he actually laughed as he assured me that he had felt all along that that was just what Dorry needed, force! My, what a thrilling situation for Dorry, or any other girl. I did envy her as I hung up the receiver, and only just in time, for she appeared one second afterwards, bearing my medicine in her hand.

Twenty minutes afterwards Brix arrived and we had a reunion. And shortly after that, just as I hatted and spurred for other regions, was standing explaining to Brix that he must come along to my home, there was another knock at the door, and in walked a very tall, very bronzed and determined looking young giant of a man. Dorry's start and her wide-staring eyes was all that was needed to tell us who he was—and (To be continued.)

Pass the Summer in Finest Health

Take a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Peppermint when tired, dull or constipated. Quick results!

We cannot all spend the summer in cool mountain resorts, and those who stay at home and savor through the hot days will find it necessary to be extra cautious about their health. Hot foods are easier to digest than cold, and even hot soup, though it overheat for the moment is grateful to the system.

Above all, keep the bowels open, for it cools the blood and calms the nerves. But when the bowels are sluggish and show signs of constipation, take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Peppermint and you will get quick relief. Syrup Peppermint is a combination of simple laxative herbs with peppermint which druggists have sold for a quarter of a century. It is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world.

Syrup Peppermint is the family doctor, the chief medical reliance of thousands of people in country and city, for the stomach, liver and bowels, in avoiding colds, headaches, fevers and summer complaints. Mrs. R. E. Masters of 1424 Second Ave., Birmingham, Ala., has used it in her family for twelve summers, and she never misses an opportunity of telling her friends how well Syrup Peppermint has kept them. It has many uses these summer days.

FREE

Millions of people of all ages suffer from occasional or chronic constipation. Let them send name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 512 Washington St., Monroeville, Ill., for a free sample bottle of his wonderful Syrup Peppermint. 8 million bottles were bought at drug stores last year, the largest sale in the world.

NEW YORK. — The tone of the stock market was irregular at the outset of Monday's trading, further favorable advices from abroad being balanced by last Saturday's clearing house statement, which showed a large loss of actual reserves. Initial reactions extending from fractions to 1 1/2 points were made by Canadian Pacific, Republic, Pierce Arrow, Invincible Oil, Texas Company, Anaconda, Marine preferred and National Airline. On the reconstructive side advances of equal or greater extent were recorded by Royal Dutch, Shell Transport, Mexican Petroleum, Vanadium and Reading, with Wisconsin Central the strongest feature of the junior rails.

The market became reactionary soon after the opening as a result of fresh offerings of steel equipments, oils, motors, shipments and specialties comprising the leather, tobacco and paper groups. Features of the reaction which ran from I to almost 4 points included Crucible, Laclede, Republic and United Steel, Alameda Locomotive, American Car and Pressed Steel Car, Mexican and Pan-American Petroleum, Houston Oil, Central Leather, Retail Stores and International Paper. The only stocks to show any degree of strength were Republic and Vanadium, which were sustained by pool buying. The seven per cent opening rate for call money was considered moderate in view of heavy withdrawals of funds during the week for federal payments.

Much of last week's rally in the stock market was cancelled today, despite the more favorable character of the foreign news and the relative steadiness of money. Sales approximated 350,000 shares.

The closing was irregular.

HARDING WORKING ON NEW SPEECH

Is To Be Delivered to Indians On League Topic

MARION. — (By United Press) — Hard at work on one of the biggest speeches of his campaign — his league of nations address to be delivered here Saturday to the Indiana delegation — Senator Warren G. Harding was to see few visitors Monday.

This promises to be the biggest week of Harding's campaign thus far. Tuesday a score or more of theatrical stars will call. Friday he addresses railroad men at Galion, dear here.

The Republican nominee considers his final speech as one of the high lights of his campaign and is carefully guarding its contents. Colonel George Harvey, editor and leader of the league, is assisting Harding on the document.

Sen. Knox of Pennsylvania, who has made a careful legal study of the league covenant and is the author of the peace resolution passed by the senate some time ago, has been asked to come out and confer with Harding on this subject, but it is not known whether his health will permit him to make the trip from his home at Valley Forge.

One report Monday was the Saturday speech will contain the mysterious 12-word campaign slogan which said to have been written by Harding himself.

Senator Harding Monday dismissed Gov. Cox's charge that the Republicans are raising a $15,000,000 campaign fund, as "ridiculous." "There is no foundation for it at all," Harding said. "Let him make revelations."

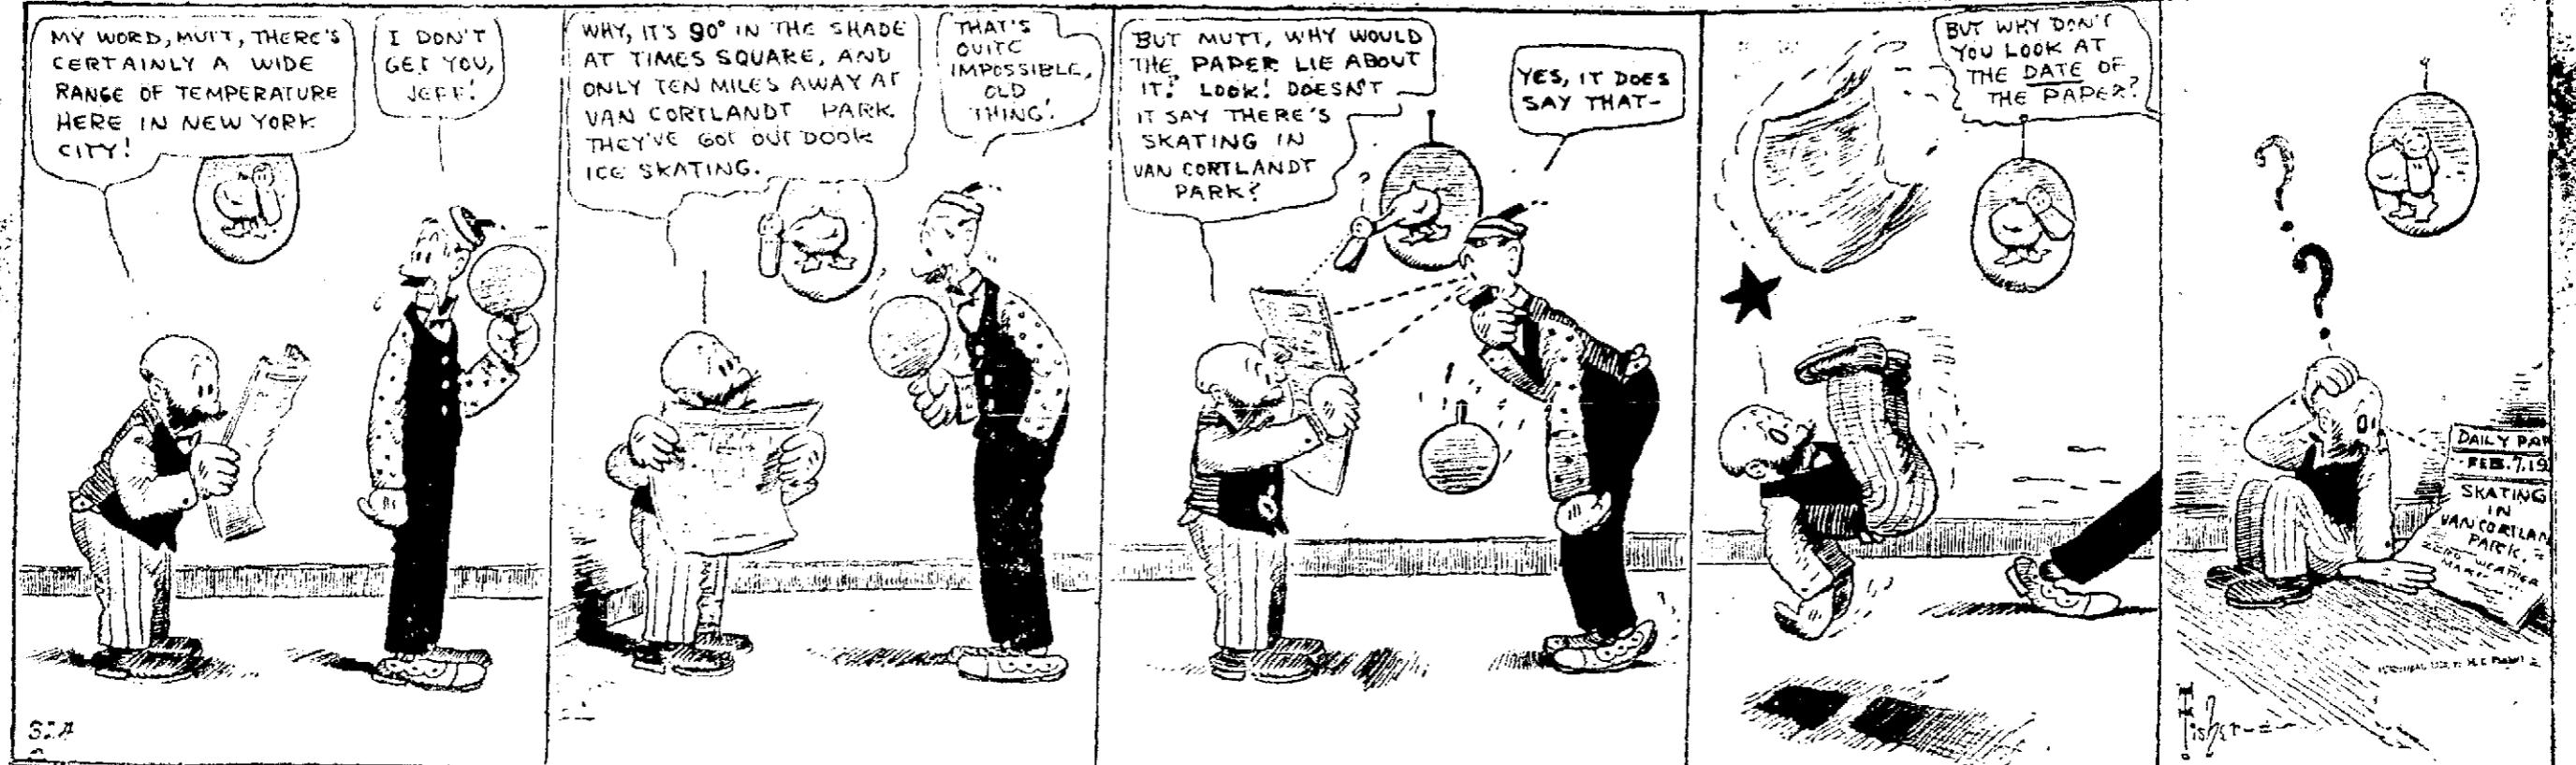

MEN LOSE LIVES IN OKLAHOMA MINE

WILBURTON, Okla. — All of the men who were entombed Saturday in an explosion in the Degnanell mine near here, lost their lives, it became known Monday. Most of the bodies were removed yesterday. The explosion is believed to have occurred when fans of the mine shafts ceased to

"Well, sir," said the bartender in one of the few remaining old towns. "What will you have?"

"A Croton highball," said the stranger, as he looked about him in a dazed way. "I've been living for years in a dry town."

"I suspected that, sir."

"Yes, yes. How all this carries me back! Er-as a personal favor to me, will you spill a little beer on the bar and put my change in it?"

"Didn't you tell me that we could always find some place around here that's cool?" inquired the summer boarder.

"I did," answered Farmer Corn to self, "and I never misrepresent where to such a place, only I can't keep it open all the time."

"What about?"

"Well, you allow me to step into your office a moment," said the man who was buying a quantity of gasoline in advance.

"Very, certainly," replied the bartender in a half-daze. "You look up anything wrong?"

"Nothing particularly. I noticed my grocer coming down the street. I'm three months behind with my bill, and I lack the gall of some people. I can't snap my fingers at my grocer and go right on inditing in a beauty I can't afford."

"How did you get on?"

The aged patient breathed the words into her lover's kindly ear as she left him in the passage. He had been "losing father" and she wanted to know the result.

"Oh, your father is healthy," said the young man. "I told him I could not live without you, and you, yes!" impatiently. "What did he say?"

He merely offered to pay my funeral expenses."

WILL YOU

BE ONE OF THOSE WHO WILL WAIT UNTIL THE COLDEST WEATHER IS HERE OR WILL YOU (AS THE WISE ONES ARE DOING) INSTALL A HEATING PLANT NOW?

Undoubtedly, right now is the time for you to be thinking of your heating apparatus for the winter. And when you do think of it you are bound to give it serious consideration. A heating plant is not a thing to be installed and used this winter and discarded in the spring but a thing that you will want to last for years. Then too you want something that will render efficient service along with its durability.

No other heating plant can compare with the efficient service and durability of the
